Fantasy novel celebrating the potential and excitement of young adulthood to be featured at BookExpo America

New York, NY: You're invited on a trip to another dimension, and you won't need to pack a suitcase. Just bring along a youthful sense of adventure.

The online book publicity company Substance Books is pleased to present Shelby and Shauna Kitt and the Dimensional Holes at BookExpo America from May 23 to 26. This young adult novel tells the story of two seemingly ordinary 13 year olds whose lives change drastically when the vice consul of the planet Miriax recruits them to seal a dimensional hole through which evil aliens called Klodians have been traveling to Earth.

Upon visiting Miriax, nothing is as the twins expect. Lilac tea is served with explosive mushrooms, agitex leaves cure motion sickness, stick insects patrol the jungle and library books carefully choose their readers, refusing to leave the shelf for anyone else. And if you're not careful, the walls spit on you.

Young readers respond enthusiastically to Shelby and Shauna's adventures and their uncommon special powers. Shauna can't get sick and excels at making others feel better. Shelby can see in the dark, and his reflexes are so fast he can play and win any video game on the first go. Yet, the personal difficulties they face and overcome, Shelby with his temper and Shauna with her shyness, are ones to which all teens can relate.

"I would recommend this book to people who like adventure and fantasy," writes 13 year old reviewer Ben Weldon. "It was very entertaining and I didn't want to put it down until I finished it."
